Today, the fourth Sunday in Advent, Matthew gives us a factual, straight forward account of the birth of Jesus Christ. But think for a moment about the shock, devastation and confusion that overwhelmed Joseph when Mary told him she was pregnant. He knew Mary; he had seen her holiness and this made no sense to him. But Joseph had been raised in the Mosaic law; he was committed to the laws that were passed down in the scriptures and the traditions of his ancestors. In the midst of this he had to decide what he needed to do. He did the only thing he knew how; he relied on himself, his faith and the love that he had for Mary. He weighed carefully what the justice of the law demanded and what mercy required. In a world that was ready to stone and shame Mary, Joseph chose to guard and love. With courage, he resolved to divorce her privately and send her away.

But the story was not over

With his decision made he sought the refuge of sleep. As Joseph slept his sleep became prayer for the psalmists tell us "at night his song is with me—a prayer to the God of my life" and again "the Lord, who counsels me; even at night my heart instructs me". Prayer took Joseph beyond his commitment to his faith and his love for Mary, beyond the law and mercy, beyond his head and heart decision. It brought him to divinity, to the very heart of God. Eternity broke into time and God revealed the truth of the Incarnation to Joseph, "the child conceived in Mary is from the Holy Spirit." Joseph was told "not to be afraid to take Mary as his wife". When he awoke, Joseph did exactly as he had been told and became part of God's plan for salvation.

But the story was not over

Joseph took Mary into his home without hesitation or questions. However, a great deal of uncertainty remained for him. There was still much he did not understand and even less he knew. But Joseph humbly surrendered control into God's hands and he trusted God's guidance. He did not know what lay ahead, yet he probably never expected some of the hardships, threats and dangers they would face. At the very outset Joseph and Mary had to make an arduous and dangerous trip to Bethlehem even as she was heavily pregnant. They could not find a place to stay and the Son of God, the Servant King, the Redeemer of All was born into this world in a stable. They had to flee to a foreign country because Herod was seeking to kill Jesus. And so, their life continued. Joseph relied on God completely and trusted him implicitly and for the many times when he didn't understand Joseph, like Mary, pondered these things in his heart.

But the story is still not over

Now it is our turn. What does this gospel mean for us in our lives today? Many of us probably find familiarity with Joseph in how he set about trying to solve the situation he faced. And we can see the movement he made as things unfolded. He began, by trying to solve the problem on his own, using his own resources albeit very good resources – his strong Jewish faith, his beliefs, values, compassion, and deep caring for Mary. It was only in sleep that Joseph's silence, obedience and humility allowed him to hear God's voice, allowed prayer to enter. It needs to be the same for us. We need always, everywhere, every time and in every circumstance to enter first and foremost into God's presence of prayer, "to lean not on our own understanding" but humbly and obediently to trust God's guidance and surrender to his will. Prayer needs to be our first go-to, for 'the Lord is come', 'Emmanuel, God is with us'. Amen.

PARISH NEWS & EVENTS

Pastoral Admin Corner

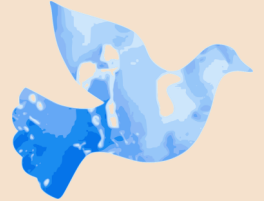

Dear Parishioners,

The Jubilee Year of Hope is drawing to a close. It will end when Pope Leo closes the Holy Door at St. Peter's Basilica on January 6th, the Solemnity of the Epiphany.

A few days ago, Pope Leo celebrated the last major 2025 Jubilee event with prisoners, guards, and their families. He reiterated Pope Francis' words that hope comes to all people including those who are imprisoned. Though our world has seen some dark days recently due to unexpected violence in a number of locations, Pope Leo encourages us all to embrace hope, the hope that comes from the knowledge that we are loved by our God and that He has redeemed us all.

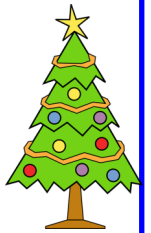

If you want to read further details about the Jubilee event, the Catholic News Agency article can be found here: <https://www.catholicnewsagency.com/news/268519/with-special-permission-prisoners-travel-to-rome-for-the-jubilee>

Rejoice, our Lord's birth is near, Tanya

THANK YOU

Everyone would agree that the parishioners of Holy Cross Parish are generous. Not only generous but compassionate and enthusiastic about making a difference. All we have to do is look at the full bins for the university students or the results of the Bishop's Appeal or the bags of gifts and money collected for the family up island. But there are also the quiet, faithful, and continuous donations to the collection.

Without the generous weekly donations, we would not be able to gather in our beautiful church and celebrate mass together. We would not be able to share coffee or a laugh or stories with our community in a safe, dry, and warm building. Thank you to all of you that share so big-heartedly! Our community is blessed!

Dear Mary-Anne,

Another big THANK YOU on behalf of the University of Victoria student community who use the Food Share program at Multifaith Centre. Your generosity is greatly appreciated!

It was wonderful to open boxes and boxes and boxes of “everything”; non-perishable food and toiletry filled our distribution tables.

Please pass on our note of appreciation to others in your Food Security Committee and all parishioners of Holy Cross Catholic Parish.

Wishing you all a healthy and joyous holiday season. Happy New Year!

Warm regards,

Anna
